A WOOLSEY WEEKEND But John Jennings Stops Kit's sweep in the Michigan Masters

A tone point during the Michigan Summer Championships, backgammon and bridge author/analyst Kit Woolsey of Kensington, California was alive and in the money in the Masters, Open, and Doubles events. It was clearly going to be his weekend. The only question was how many sacks would he need to carry away his prize money?

Carol Joy Cole and a very capable staff ran the annual Independence Day weekend tournament at the Sheraton Novi Hotel 30 June–4 July. There were 162 main event participants, down 10% from the previous year, but still a solid showing.

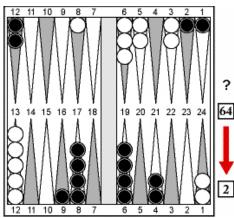

Open winner/Masters finalist Kit Woolsey.

Kit, the world's #13 Giant of Backgammon rolled through the tournament on skill and outstanding dice. In the Open event, he blew out Neil Kazaross and Bill Davis to win the undefeated sheet. eXtreme Gammon rated his luck advantage near six in both matches. But this was a true double elimination tournament, so whoever survived the one-loss bracket would still have a shot at him.

That individual was former Pittsburgh tourney director Steve Hast. Steve defeated CSI co-director, Bill Davis in the second chance finals to get his shot at Kit.

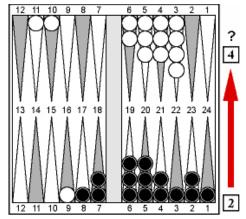

The first 13-point match was initially close. After six games, the match was tied at 4-all. In the next six games, Kit outscored Steve five to two. Then in game 13 with Kit leading 9–6, Steve contemplated a double: Michigan Open finals. Kit Woolsey (Black) leads Steve Hast (White) 9–6 to 13. White on roll. CUBE ACTION(S)?

Steve Hast cubed early. Kit's take (with all of his checkers in play and his back men split) was trivial. Steve still must extricate two back men buttoned up on the 24-point. Additionally, he lacks the firepower necessary to pull off a quick closeout.

After the smoke cleared, the following non-contact recube opportunity developed for Mr. Woolsey:

Michigan Open finals. Kit Woolsey (Black) leads Steve Hast (White) 9–6 to 13. Black on roll. RECUBE ACTION(S)?

Kit redoubled and was prepared to take his two points when Steve took the 4-cube and rewhipped ot 8 for the match! This massive blunder cost him about 6% match equity on its own.

Following the match, Steve explained why he decided to put the match on the line in this position:

"Many times during the match when I had rolled a joker, Kit immediately came back with a great counter roll. Aware of Kit's incredibly high luck factor over his past four matches, I decided to take this cube and put the first match on the line. Dropping would put me down 6–11 to 13, yielding me around 16% match wins against normal rolling. I calculated I had about 10% equity in this position, but still decided to take the recube anyway.

"If I win the the first match in this fashion, I psychologically gain a huge boost and possibly get him talking to himself. I didn't play the first match particularly well, but felt I would be mentally sharp for the rubber match. So I sacrificed 5–6% equity (and maybe not that much due to Kit's superior dice) for the small chance I would hit the jackpot with high dice the balance of the game."

Kit breezed home to victory winning over $6000 in prize money, not counting the side pool and Calcutta.

MICHIGAN MASTERS

After knocking off (in order) Harvey Gillis, Stacy Turner, Steve Sax, and David Rockwell, Kit faced Illinois expert John Jennings. John had a tough road as well besting Richard Munitz, Steve Mellen, Mike Senkiewicz, and Al Hodis. Additionally, John had a nice run in the Open tourney placing 4th/5th.

Director Carol Joy Cole awards John Jennings the Michigan Masters trophy.

It looked like another run-away with Kit winning the first three games. Then things started to go John's way. Trailing 2–4 to 11, John ran off five straight points. Then in game seven with John leading 7–4, [Continued on page 6]

A NICE THANK-YOU

Enclosed is my two year renewal. Thanks for 25+ years of pleasure with CHICAGO POINT.—Don Bernstein, Aventura, Florida

REQUEST FOR LOWER ENTRY FEES

The economy stinks and Bar Point Club Sunday games are suffering! Nowadays people just don't want to spend $50 (with the $10 side pool) for Backgammon! Sunday tournaments are double points. Why increase the entry cost by four times? ($10 to $40).—Mike Wolock, Chicago, Illinois

We have five singles tournaments per year and the Open entry fee is $35 plus a $5 food coupon (Intermediates pay $15 + $5). Compare this to the New York Club with a $100 entry fee meeting monthly. Our $35 fee is really not so bad for a bimonthly MARK YOUR CALENDAR

OLDSTERS WELCOME

I am writing because I have the desire to play backgammon again. I am 82 years of age (not 82 years OLD).

I came to your club some years ago and drew a very disturbed person who slammed the board shut when I landed (luckily) on his two open men. I had never played the game with another player, before in my life, and have never played another person since.

I would love to try my self-taught skill with a knowledgeable player. I can make my moves quite rapidly and "expertly," in

THE 'LADIES' AID

Dear Danny: This challenging position occurred in the Last Chance of a 2010 ABT tournament. Facing some very serious trouble, I got lucky and rolled "the girls":

Match to 5 points tied at 4–4. BLACK TO PLAY 5-5.

How should I handle these lovely ladies? I thought about the overall situation and decided on a particular play. My strategy proved to be incorrect as my opponent went on to win the game and match.

I recorded the position and when I got home, I rolled it out on Snowie. Turns out I made the third best choice. Please give me your insight before you see the rollout and then after. Perhaps I can learn something from my error after all.—Lady Killer

DEAR KILLER: In this position, the baranchor not only provides more safety but is also very strong, one point holding three stripped points of the opponent, so it is tempting to make it, B/10, 23/18. However, this play leaves two hittable blots in my own courts, and more significantly, fails to make my own 5-point. So I'll stick with the obvious B/5, which leaves the blots in my own board.

In general, when one of my plays makes the 5-point, I need truly compelling reasons to choose any other.—Yours, Danny

Snowie Rollout Data

6000 cubeless rollouts were run for each play. Parameters were full, 3-ply, precise.

Danny Kleinman Responds

No surprises here. Making the 5-point maximizes winning chances, while making the bar-anchor minimizes the risk of getting primed in or closed out and thus of losing gammons. Of the two plays that make the bar-anchor, the play that leaves the greater number of shots is worse. At double matchpoint, where gammons are irrelevant, making the 5-point is clear. In money play, or at match scores where gammons count normally, the safety of the bar-anchor would swing the decision the other way.-DK

MUNITZ WINS IN LA Defeats Nunez in modified double elimination event.

In this year's modified double elimination finals of Patrick Gibson's Los Angeles Open (11–13 June at the Airtel Hotel in Van Nuys, CA), Justin Nunez (CA), bested Richard Munitz (NY) to win the undefeated bracket. But Richard battled back defeating Dorn Bishop

LA Open finals. Richard Munitz (Black) leads Justin Nunez (White) 9–8 to 11. Black on roll CUBE ACTION(S)?

Ahead 9–8 in the position at left, Richard doubled early with only a 10 pip lead (116 to 126). But the lead held up and Mr. Munitz won his seventh ABT title of alltime. A well-played match by both sides.

Special congrats to Super Jackpot winner Joe Russell (who was also third in the Open) and to all the other winners. Another fine event directed by our favorite MFIC. Δ

INTERESTING RULING QUESTION

Here's a ruling that came up at our Las Vegas Backgammon Club and we'd like your opinion.

Player rolls and completes a legal play. He then moves his dice on the board without lifting them and without advising his opponent. According to Rule 4.5, he has not concluded his play; however, by not notifying his opponent, he has left himself open to a possibly adverse ruling.

I ruled that the player had completed his roll under the logic of Rule 5.4 (last sentence). I interpreted the movement of the dice after a legal play has been made to be unnecessary and "capricious."

What's your take on this?—Tony Anton & Jason Lee, Las Vegas Backgammon Club

If a player rolls his dice and prior to making a legal move, slides them closer to himself to see them or to make room for a future checker play, then we rule that his dice are still down, whether he announces his intentions to reposition his dice or not.

But if a player makes a legal play and then moves or slides his dice and the opponent rolls, I evoke 4.5 and rule that in this case, if he did not announce that he was adjusting his dice, the dice are ruled "up." That's because in the second case, a player could be trying to draw a fast roll by purposely dragging his dice on the board and that is unethical.—Ed.

MICHIGAN...

Michigan Masters. John Jennings (Black) leads Kit Woolsey (White) 7–4 to 11. Black doubles. SHOULD WHITE TAKE?

Was the position too good to double? John didn't think so and correctly turned the cube. Perhaps tired from all the matches he had played, or maybe looking ahead to the impending Open finals, Kit accepted the dangerous cube. Snowie ranks it as a monster blunder of 0.500 magnitude. John rolled on to win a gammon and capture the $7,000 first prize. In John Jennings' own words: "The entire event was surreal. It was like a baseball player dreaming about facing an all-time great with the World Series title on the line.

"My toughest Masters match occurred in the semifinals against Al Hodis (NY) where I had to overcome a 0–7 deficit. I was a bit nervous starting the 11-pt. finals vs. Kit and then got real nervous when I doubled leading 7–4 in the last game and started to roll home a match-winning gammon.

"I remember Greg Tomlin and I in Puerto Rico studying a match between Kit and Neil Kazaross over an actual board. Never would I have dreamt that I'd be playing against a legend in this big a match let alone winning! Kit was a gracious opponent and his greatness definitely made this my biggest win ever. Thanks to CJC for a great event!"

S hown here are six backgammon positions. In each one, Black is on roll and must decide whether or not to double. In 50% of the positions, Black should double and in the other 50%, he is not good enough and should simply roll the dice.

Circle the 64-cube in the three positions you think are proper doubles. To pass this quiz, you'll need to get all three right.

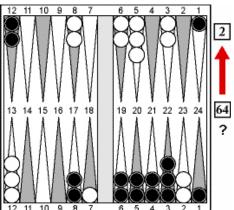

Answers are correct by a minimum differential of 0.020 and have been determined by 2000 Snowie rollouts (3-ply, precise, full) with the doubling cube in play when applicable. For money games, the Jacoby Rule is in effect.

Answers are on page 4. Δ

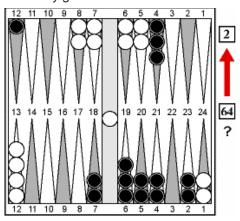

1. Money game.

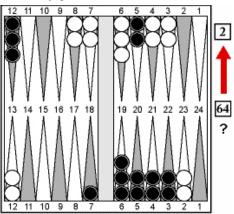

2. 5 point match tied at 0 to 0.

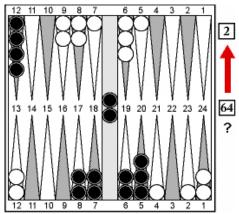

3. Money game.

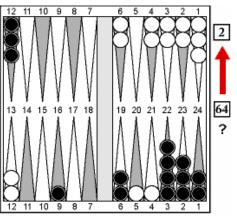

4. Money game.

5. 5 point match. Black trails White 1-3.

Dontcha just love it when all you need is a 3 or 4 to hit and win, but instead you roll 5-5 or 6-6, missing, and costing you the game, and your opponent says: "Nice roll" or "Boy you sure get lots of doubles!"?

And dontcha just love it when your opponent gets the perfect roll to hit, make the prime, and probably win the match, and just sits there for a long time, like he doesn't see the play, and then, finally, he makes the right play?

And dontcha just love it when you play some really horrible player who makes a lot of terrible mistakes, and he turns to you and tells you about some play you should not have made?

And dontcha just love it when they reach for the cube, stop, think about it, put the cube back, then reach for it again, hold if for a while, put it back again, and then, finally, double?

And dontcha just love it when you have just danced on a two point board for the third time in a row and your opponent rolls some perfectly normal, reasonable number and gets all upset because it wasn't a perfect roll?

And dontcha just love it when you hold the cube because you're pretty sure you can win a gammon, but it doesn't work out, and afterwards, your opponent says, "You know, you could have cubed me out at one time there"?

And dontcha just love it when you get gammoned and your opponent tells you that you were lucky because you should have been backgammoned?

Dontcha just love it? Dontcha just love this game sometimes? Dontcha just want to kill somebody sometimes? Dontcha? Huh?—Phil Simborg Δ

This problem arose in a money game. I don't know the details, but let's imagine it came up in a chouette. Depending upon who is the Captain it is easy to imagine a set of flying fingers grabbing the back man, lifting it over the prime, sliding it onto the 11-point so fast it skids halfway to Skokie; and before you can say: "Hey Carter, could we look at that?" the Box is rolling boxes and Carter is asking why you were trying to interrupt his flow.

Carter is a fine player, and running with the back man looks like a fine play. You have a six-prime, after all, with five of your opponent's men trapped behind it. Meanwhile, you have one man behind her less impressive prime, and 6-4 allows you to escape cleanly. But looking for a second play can't hurt, so let's see if there is a Plan B.

White's best chance of winning, indeed her only chance if you run, is to hit you as you bear in. Owning the deucepoint, she will always have an angle, but if she rolls an ace and makes the 3-point, her chances are much better. Her timing isn't guaranteed, but it isn't all that bad, especially if you roll a few large numbers and she escapes her fifth man quickly. You'd love to make the 3-point, and now that you take another look, you realize that you can.

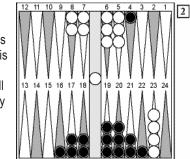

Pos. #1. After Black has played 6-4 by making his 3-pt. (9/3*, 7/3).

This leaves White seven "jokers"—the six numbers that enter and hit on your barpoint, and double ones. But I placed "jokers" in quotes because after any of them, if the cube were still in the middle, you would have a solid double. When her best rolls leave you a big favorite, this play can't be too bad.

To give us time to consider that play I shifted Herb over to the Captain's chair. So we still have time, plenty of time, to look around for a Plan C. Is there anything else to consider? What about hitting lose on the 3-point? (With the 6, that is; running and then hitting with the 4 is not a candidate.) This keep a solid five-prime, with White having five men back, none on the edge.

Pos. #2. After Black has played his 6 (9/3*). Black still must play a 4.

Black has played his 6, and still has to play a 4. It seems natural to pick up the rear blot, 9/5, but Mike Corbett, who is in town and in this imaginary chou chimes in: "What about 5/1?" Mike is renowned for his creative plays bearing in against backgames, but voluntarily creating a fourth blot seems extravagant. In any case there is no way the team will go for it. After some heated discussion 9/3*, 9/5 is played, which is the play I would make over the board.

I put the play into two bots, Snowie and eXtreme Gammon. Both bots evaluated all of the candidate plays, including $9/3^*$, 5/1as too close to call. I set up Snowie to roll out the four plays on its highest setting, 3-ply precise, with a live cube, also at 3-ply precise, with 1296 trials for each of the four plays. Not so many years ago, using a fast desktop PC it took about three minutes to roll out a single game with those settings, so 5184 games would have taken nearly two weeks. Or not. Because unless you had Windows NT 4.0 all of the other Windows operating systems back then would have crashed long before the rollouts were completed. With my current laptop the twoweek job took about sixteen hours, toiling overnight while I caught up on my sleep and dreamed of winning gammons.

Meanwhile, eXtreme is much faster, so I did 1296 on 3-ply, extended those to 2592, and extended again to 5184.

By then both bots had eliminated the same two plays, but the other two were neck and neck. And each bot favored a different play. Since eXtreme was faster I extended again to 10,368. At 5184 eXtreme was showing one candidate as almost 97% certain to be best, but lo and behold, after 10,368 the other play was a very slight favorite. With both bots now in agreement, I stopped.

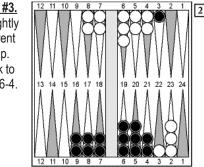

It turns out that you cannot blunder on this play, but you may err. The two weakest choices (at least, of the four candidates) are clear errors, but nowhere near blunders. The two top plays? Too close to call. I could continue rolling them out, and after 129,600 trials or so, could declare a winner, but that would say more about me than it would about the plays. What were the top plays? It turns out that you must hit with 9/3*, and then both bots very slightly prefer playing 5/1! Even the imaginary Mike Corbett is worth listening to.

Why slot the ace? What is the strength of that move as compared with 9/5? A clue may be that slotting is the best play at DMP; slotting wins the most games. Meanwhile, it loses a fraction of a percent more gammons, but it also wins fewer gammons. The logical assumption is that slotting helps to disrupt White's timing, sometimes at the cost of a gammon or two.

Results may vary! Of the four plays slotting the ace is the one most likely to create complications. If you aren't comfortable with tricky timing decisions you should opt for the straightforward 9/3*, 9/5.

What lessons can we draw from this? The most important one is to eschew passive plays when your opponent is threatening a second anchor. Second, keep in mind that there are a number of factors that dictate aggression.

Pos. #3. A slightly different set-up. Black to play 6-4.

Here you must run; breaking the prime is a colossal blunder. However with 6-3, running and hitting lose is clear cut. Running is a whopper, and pointing is a double whopper. But when the opponent's prime is shorter and his inner board weaker, even extravagant plays should be considered.— Jake Jacobs Δ

AMALGAMATION

Visiting the Bar Point Club this past month: Stick Rice (OH), Greg King (OH)... The Riviera Cup Tournament in Cannes, France was cancelled in late June, just a month before it was scheduled to occur. At the time of cancellation, organizer Eric Guedj states that not one room had been reserved at the tourney hotel. A bizarre poker-style format was given as one reason for the lack of support... John O'Hagan (IN) has joined Phil Simborg (IL) and Perry Gartner (FL) to form what may be the strongest backgammon teaching partnership in the world. For information on becoming a student, go to simborgbackgammonlessons.com... So tennis for Ken Bond for a while. He badly injured a hamstring and will need a few months to recuperate... What did World Cup teams do in the layoff periods between their matches. The Greeks, according to their striker Angelos Charisteas, relied on backgammon tournaments and card games... The iPhone Backgammon Scoreboard app has not been updated for the new OS 4.0. In the meantime, Hiroyuki Kitago suggests iPhone users go to the Internet and use the free scorer at: www.backgammonscoreboard.net/iphone/ scoreboard.html... The Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn, Michigan is spotlighting a "Play" exhibit with larger-than-life interactive games including bowling, dominoes, billiards, and backgammon. The exhibit runs through 19 September... Miracles happen. In our March 2010 issue, Mary Hickey (OH) wrote a letter informing us that Ed King (OH) was under hospice care with just weeks to live. Ed had other ideas. He made an incredible recovery to the point where he played in the Michigan Summer Championships finishing just one spot out of the money. God bless him!... Good luck to Tony Anton who takes over from Jason Lee as the Las Vegas Backgammon Club contact person... Tom & Karen Meyer (IL) and family have taken a month off and are touring the wild west. You can read about their adventures here: followthezees. blogspot.com...Joe Miller informs us that his Ohio State Backgammon Club has changed its monthly tournament venue to Brubaker's Pub in Akron. For more info, go to: home. roadrunner.com/~osbclub... In order to partake in the Backgammon & Poker On Board cruise tourney (22–29 January 2011), Sue Will (309/699-6005) needs your final payment by 15 September. Remember that the US Backgammon Open will be held just a week before the cruise in our sailing port city of Fort Lauderdale; so double your fun in January! Δ
